LETTER FROM NEW YORK.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

New York, Feb. 21, 1866.

THE RELIEF OF BROADWAY.

At present the question which most agitates the citizens of New York city is, who will come to the relief of Broadway, and "how to do it?" Pedestrians crossing the above thoroughfare at any point from Canal street down to the Battery, run the risk of being cut up into mince-meat from the numerous vehicles which are constantly moving up and down from early morning to a late hour at night. It is nothing unusual, of late, to hear of an individual, while in the act of crossing the street, being almost fastened to a carriage just ahead of him by the tongue of a huge sized omnibus which was coming after him. The ladies of the city are generally escorted from one side to the other, by a metropolitan policeman, some of whom are stationed on the different crossings for that purpose. Several schemes for the purpose of relieving Broadway of some of its travel, have already been advanced, among the most important of which, was an underground railway and an air line railway. To accomplish the former, a company had been organized and a bill introduced in the Legislature, but the Committee upon calling on the chief engineer of the Croton water-works, received a report adverse to its practicability, asserting that the building of the underground road would seriously injure the "mains" of the water-works; hence, that bill was indefinitely postponed, and the public are just now on the qui vive as to which will be the soonest and easiest accomplished, the air line road, the widening of Broadway, or balloon locomotion.

THE NEW YORK AND SAN FRANCISCO STEAMSHIP COMPANY.

This is the name of the new company lately organized to run in competition with the Pacific Mail Steamship Company's line on the route from New York to San Francisco via Aspinwall; and for the purpose of giving your readers some idea of the stability of the company, I send you the following statement of organization and its capital employed:

The new company, which is called the "New York and San Francisco Mail Steamship Company," is organized under the laws of the State of New York, with a capital of $4,000,000, of which $2,500,000 is taken by the "New York Mail Steamship Company" in payment for the six steamships named below and one-half of their wharf property in the city. The cash value of the ships and other property thus transferred to the new company is estimated at $3,100,000, or $600,000 in excess of the sum paid for it, the benefits of which accrue to the stock of the new company, of which the New York Mail Steamship Company is the largest owner. Of the remaining $1,500,000 of capital (all of which will be the working capital of the company) $1,200,000 is to be taken by wealthy capitalists in this and the New England States, and $300,000 is to be offered to the merchants of California in sums of one thousand dollars to five thousand dollars. Of the one million two hundred thousand dollars, more than one million has already been taken. There are nine directors of the company, as follows: Oakes Ames, of Massachusetts; William Sprague, of Rhode Island; G. V. Fox, of Washington; W. H. Aspinwall, William S. Williams, James A. Raynor, A. C. Kingsland, Jr., and Jacob B. Jewett, of New York. The remaining place is at present reserved for a prominent banker in California, to whom it has been offered by letter, and whose reply will soon be received. If not accepted by him it is to be offered to Calvin Durr, Esq., a wealth capitalist of this city.

The capacity of the company's steamships, for the transportation of passengers and freight is as follows:—

NAME.	Government Tonnage	First Cabin Berths	Second Cabin Berths	Steerage Berths	Tons Freight, forty cubic feet per ton	Tons Coal in Bunkers
Rising Star, side-wheel	2885	207	221	642	1786	751
Guiding Star, side-wh'l	2605	158	180	636	1643	716
Morning Star, side-wh'l	2401	142	180	615	1407	564

The New York Mail Steamship Company, which has a capital of $2,000,000 paid in (with the privilege to increase it to $4,000,000) and a surplus of $1,000,000, will continue the line between New York and New Orleans with the steamers which they will still own and others which they will build.

The company will also run the line between New Orleans and Aspinwall, for which service they will build two ships of small size, and well adapted to the trade.

OREGONIANS SETTLING IN GEORGIA.

I have just had the pleasure of meeting one of Portland's best and most esteemed citizens, A. M. Starr, Esq., who informed me that he, in company with the Hon. H. W. Eddy, of Clackamas county, Oregon, have purchased a cotton plantation of some three thousand acres of land, with all its appurtenances, such as buildings, agricultural implements, cotton gin, etc., and they have already commenced work in earnest, having employed some seventy-five freedmen, whom they have agreed to pay from ten to twelve dollars per month. Mr. Eddy remains at present on the plantation, until the return of Mr. Starr, when the former gentleman will proceed to Oregon to wind up his home affairs, prior to his return east. From the well known political sentiments those gentlemen entertain, the Union men of Georgia will no doubt be pleased to acquire such allies to their ranks.

MONEY DEPOSITED TO THE CREDIT OF THE TREASURER BY THE SOUTHERN STATES.

A table has been officially prepared exhibiting the amount of moneys deposited to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States from all sources in the States of Tennessee, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Louisiana, Texas, Mississippi and Arkansas. The total amount is nearly $28,000,000, from April 1, 1865 to February 1, 1866, divided as follows:

Custom House fees, principally at New Orleans	$2,878,000
Captured and abandoned property	13,131,000
Direct taxes	636,000
Confiscations	120,000
Tax on cotton	133,000
Commercial intercourse	22,400
General bank duty	33,000
Internal revenue	11,000,000

CRIME IN NEW YORK.

At present this city is celebrated for its noted increase in all crimes known in the catalogue, notwithstanding the efficiency of the Metropolitan Police with the addition of an able detective force. Murders, highway robberies, burglaries, arson, infanticide, etc. are of daily occurrence here, just now.

LATE INTERESTING CONGRESSIONAL ITEMS.

Both of Oregon's Senators have made speeches in the Senate, on President Johnson's reconstruction policy. Mr. Nesmith in his argument endorsed the President in toto, while Mr. Williams dissents with Mr. Johnson, still giving him credit for patriotism and honesty, but asserting that he erred.

VINDICATION OF THE NATIONAL AUTHORITY—TRIAL OF TRAITORS.

On the 10th inst. Mr. Henderson, (rep.) of Oregon, offered resolutions declaring that the Government of the United States is intended to protect every individual in the free and untrammeled exercise of all his rights and privileges; that our safety and prosperity require that just and adequate penalties be inflicted on those who violate the law, and upon all transgressions; not for the purpose of retaliation or revenge, but to secure subordination to the constituted authorities; and that the House will stand by and sustain the President in executing the laws by bringing to trial a sufficient number of the leading rebels against the National Government in order to vindicate the national authority, sustain the confidence of the loyal people and to rebuke conspirators and traitors for all time to come.

Debate arising the resolutions went over.

Mr. Stewart, (rep.) of Nevada, introduced a bill concerning national banks in certain States. It provides that in addition to the three hundred millions of banking capital now authorized, twenty-one millions more shall be distributed as follows: To California, ten millions; to Nevada, four millions; to Oregon, three millions; to Idaho, two millions, and to Washington and Arizona, one million each.

THE RUSSO-AMERICAN TELEGRAPH.

Mr. Banks, (rep.) of Mass., from the Committee on Foreign Affairs, reported a joint resolution authorizing and requiring the Secretary of the Navy to detail one steam vessel from the Pacific squadron to make a survey and sounding both of the American and Russian coast where it is proposed to establish telegraph communication between the Western and Eastern continents and for the transportation of materials, and generally afford such assistance as may be best calculated to secure the success of the enterprise and to carry out the purposes of the act of July, 1864.

Mr. Washburne, (rep.) of Illinois, opposed the resolution, as he was not willing to place the navy at the disposal of a foreign government or private parties.

Mr. Banks said if action were to be taken on this matter it should be taken at once.

Mr. Stevens, (rep.) from Pa., remarked that last year, when Congress permitted the company to lay a telegraph by way of Russia, they authorized the Secretary of the Navy to send one or two ships to aid them; but some clerk in that department said the vessel should not be sent, as the act said "authorized" and not "required." Russia had ordered two vessels for the [illegible]. He hoped the intention of the law would be carried out, and that the vessel might not be withheld merely on the whim of a clerk.

Mr. Banks said this was one of the grandest enterprises of the age. The vessel proposed to be furnished would carry the flag of the country. It was desirable to connect the lines at Behring Straits. The author of the enterprise, Mr. Collins, was a native of New York, but a citizen of California. Col. Buckley as well as Mr. Collins was well known to him. He was one of the most able, patriotic and firm men he ever knew. The telegraphic connection would be completed in 1867. By its establishment the Secretary of the Navy would be able to communicate with our vessels in any part of the earth. Not only Russia had sent out vessels, but the British Government had also given everything required, and the American Government had given nothing but this vessel.

Mr. Washburne, of Ill., said this was a bill in effect asking the people to pay the expenses which the company itself incurred.

Mr. Brooks, (dem.) of New York, said this was not a corporation. The enterprise was a great act of civilization, stretching out the American Continent to the Old World. It was the only means of reaching the people favorable to the United States. It was indispensably necessary, situated as we are with France and England, to unite ourselves with our only national friend, Russia.

Mr. Banks repeated that this was not a private telegraph. The whole world was interested in it. If the Navy Department had no interest in it the United States have. This line would place us in communication with six millions of people in Russia and China, the only national friends we have. It dwarfed, in the future, the European Powers hostile to us. Therefore every member should vote for the measure now before the House.

The joint resolution was adopted.

SUNDAY DINNER IN PRISON.—The San [illegible] correspondent of the Flag, tells the following pathetic story:

"There is a young man sentenced to jail for a year, who still retains the treasures of a [illegible] wife and child. They come to see him every day, and the Warden turns the great creaking lock, and the three sit on a bench and for awhile forget their misfortunes. Yesterday, being Sunday, they brought him his dinner, all the delicate little things that a poor man could think of and carry, and the repast lasted a great while. The child is extremely beautiful, and while it was playing about the grated doors, I could see the furtive tears drive one another quickly down the young mother's rosy cheek, though she was pretending to be cheerful all the time. It was a melancholy banquet, to be sure, and while pretending not to see, I still observed the dread misery that was tearing at her heart. At length the banquet in the "House of Sorrows," was over; the father was locked in his cell, and the mother and child went away carrying the things, the little one with paces hardly a foot long. Its face and neck were white as the snows of Caucasus, its eyes set with the incarnation of Summer roses; and yet the desolate aspect of the poor little thing made me wish that there were no gloomy jails, no forbidden doors in the way of affection; no creaking keys, no iron-hearted locks to separate it from its father's bosom; no unforgiven sin in the earth to blast the life-time of two innocent beings so young and beautiful."

WHITE BLUFFS ROAD EXPEDITION.—Mr. Jas. A. Odell, one of the party out exploring for a practicable route from White Bluffs to Blackfoot, writes from Spokane Ferry, March 21st, as follows:

So far I have found an excellent wagon road. There is not over five miles of sandy road on the whole route, and no hills to amount to anything. I am much better satisfied with the location of White Bluffs than I was before I came out over the country. I think there is very little doubt of the success of the Bluffs.

Mr. Odell is going on by way of Lake Pend d'Oreille.

LOYALTY AND RADICALISM CONVERTIBLE TERMS.—The St. Louis Democrat says that in Missouri the foundation of political conservatism is disloyalty. So it is in every one of the abolitionized slave States, Tennessee, Maryland and Kentucky afford conspicuous examples of the fact; and in those States which were deep in the rebellion the rule is, if possible, even truer. Radicalism and hearty loyalty seem, in most parts of the country, to be pretty nearly convertible terms.—Chicago Republican.

OUTRAGEOUS LEGISLATION IN ALABAMA.—The members of the Alabama Legislature seem determined to pass oppressive laws against the freedmen, while Governor Patton, more humane, or at any rate more prudent, has vetoed several of their iniquitous acts. Among them are "a bill to regulate contracts with freedmen, and to enforce the same," and a "bill to extend the criminal laws of the State, applicable to free persons of color, to freedmen, free negroes and mulattoes." This charming bill applies the old free negro laws to freedmen, such as two years' imprisonment for every free negro who comes into the State, and, if he does not leave when released, five years more; prohibits free negroes from sampling cotton, and would contain many regulations which could not exist except in a State where slavery was recognized. The Governor also vetoed a bill for the regulation of the relation of master and apprentice, as relating to free negroes. He says the State laws regarding white apprenticeship are sufficient.

The Convention—The Candidates.

We present at the head of this column the names of the candidates selected by the Union State Convention at Corvallis, yesterday, together with the resolutions declaring the platform upon which the Union party of Oregon enters the campaign. The resolutions are brief, but comprehensive and sound, and will meet, we think, the unqualified approval of all Union men who earnestly and sincerely desire, above all merely personal considerations, the perpetuation of our Government.

The candidates are men of ability, and of unquestioned integrity. Without any of that vain boasting which is so common in announcements of party nominations, we can say that the Convention has presented a list of names that ought and will receive the undivided support of the Union party. The gentlemen nominated are not each of them our first choice, nor perhaps, are they of anybody else, but we are satisfied to yield our preferences and judgement to that of the party as expressed by their Convention, and in this we think we but act as will all good Union men of the State. The ticket will be triumphantly elected on the 4th day of next June.

Professions vs. Practise.

The Democratic Convention of Multnomah county, on Tuesday, among other things, resolved as the Democratic creed of political faith and practise, that they are steadfastly devoted to the doctrine of "Equal and exact justice to all men, of whatever state, party or sect." This is a Democratic "glittering generality." What is the exact truth about it? Simply that the Democratic party is as widely at variance, with that doctrine as are the antipodal poles of the earth. That party has always been the especial advocate and defender of the practices of human slavery, which denies to one class of men every right and every practical idea of justice. While in power in the Legislative and Executive branches of the Government, it always used its power to strengthen, perpetuate and spread that institution. For that purpose Democratic Congresses passed laws bordering hardly upon a stultification of the entire idea of States' rights, one of the corner stones of the Democratic party. To preserve it from the advancing tides of civilization and Christianity, the Democratic party undertook to separate the States where it was localized, from the others, and to set up another Government based on the principle of oligarchism. In this attempt there was perfect union of ideas between Democrats South and North, the one taking up arms for its accomplishment, the other persistently declaring that they had the right to do it and that the Government of the United States had no warrant in its constitutional law, to hinder the attempt.

When the emancipation proclamation was issued, the entire Democratic voice of the country was united in condemning it as unconstitutional, arbitrary and impolitic. There was no consideration, physical or ethical, upon which they did not oppose it. To confer equal and exact justice upon over four millions of men, for whose presence in the country the Democratic party was more directly responsible than anybody else, was not in any [illegible] or degree a Democratic idea, nor had that party ever an intention of reducing to practice the professions which we find reiterated by the Multnomah Democracy. Even now, when slavery is dead, the [illegible] reluctantly acknowledge the fact, but persistently holds that the blow which killed it struck down public and private right—the Democratic right to deny human rights! The slaves have been restored to their natural right to liberty, but the Democratic party in contradiction of their professions about "equal and exact justice," are everywhere straining every nerve to fix in public sentiment the idea that a negro has no rights and may not look for justice in this country, this being as they claim, a government in which only white men have any rights. If the negroes, now numbering about one-tenth of the population of the United States, ever obtain "equal and exact justice," they will never have the Democracy to thank for it. Nobody that we know of wants them to have more of rights or justice than white men, but in some things, at least, they are entitled equally with white men to the benefits of an impartial administration of the law. They are here, in the United States, and here at the instance of Democratic slaveholders. The right to live belongs to them; the right to personal liberty belongs to them; the right to pursue their own happiness, only restricted by such laws as govern other men, belongs to them; they have like other men the right to own property and control it. The President told them not long since, that this government belonged to them as much as to white men—and Democracy endorses Johnson. Yet, these same Democrats, after proclaiming themselves the especial champions of "equal and exact justice," deny all these rights to one-tenth of the population, and endorse Johnson by saying this is especially the white man's government—made by white men for white men and for nobody else! Consistency is a jewel, but Democracy's casket is empty.

Further on in the same resolution, the Democracy says it favors "the support of the general government in its whole constitutional vigor." When the Government wanted the support of all its people to maintain itself against the deadly assaults of the incarnate fiends of treason, the Democracy supported the Government by declaring everywhere that it had no constitutional right to defend itself. The "constitutional vigor" they supported then was inactivity, imbecile yielding of its prerogatives, and national death which must have resulted had the Government had no other than Democratic supporters. This record is stamped indelibly upon the history of the rebellion and cannot be escaped. They now desire to support the "constitutional vigor" of the Government by admitting to their old places in Congress, some of the very men who laid hold upon the national constitution and gnashed their teeth in the foaming fury of maddened efforts to rend it; and this, too, while some of them brazenly declare that they submit to might and not to right as they still view it. The Democracy asks, nay, demands, this with a full knowledge that such men would, if in their power, rob the Government of every benefit resulting from the defeat of treason.

Another of the resolutions expresses a sentiment so widely different from that lately held by the Democracy, that we cannot refrain from noticing it. The sixth of the series says:

> Resolved, That we will ever hold in grateful memory those through whose patriotic, not mercenary or partisan, services the dignity of the Republic and the integrity of the Union were preserved.

It must be very fresh in the memory of everybody, with what acerbity the Democracy always assailed the motives and character of our gallant soldiery while they [illegible] at and fury of the struggle [illegible] do less than your [illegible] till doubtful. It cannot be that even the Democrats have forgotten how they howled upon the soldiers as "Lincoln hirelings," "minions of a tyrant?" how scarcely an officer of rank escaped their malicious slanders, and how the great authoritative voice of the Democracy declared at Chicago that "the war was a failure." Now that the war is over, the soldiers are receiving the appreciative plaudits of a grateful people, and the war has proven not a "failure," these Democrats, with that brazen mendacity which is the peculiar characteristic of latter day Democracy, profess to be grateful toward, and full of admiration of, the heroes whom they so recently denounced as hirelings and minions. But the soldiers who whipped Democracy's self on the battle field will not fall into Democracy's political pits while the ground is yet scarcely dry of their martyr blood. The Democracy might have saved itself the shame of publishing to the world, its despicable hypocrisy toward Union soldiers.

State Items.

The colonial authorities of British Columbia, advertise for supplies of provisions to be furnished for government use at Seymour and at Lillooet. Among other articles designated, we notice that a large quantity of Oregon Bacon is specified.

A weather-wise man of Portland thinks the present storm about the last of the season. It is a last-ing one at least and has last-ed long enough.

The Mountaineer says Capt. Waters, of the 1st Oregon Infantry, is down on business connected with Fort Lapwai and the Indian Agency at that point, and will take a flying trip into Web-foot to see his friends before he returns. He says that a company of cavalry are badly needed at Lapwai in order to prevent the whites from having improper intercourse with the Indians. That the Indians on the reserve are mostly Nez Perces, are disposed to be well behaved and that if whisky and cultus whites can be kept off the reserve it will be a success.

A man named Louis Loheide was found dead in his bed at the Columbia Hotel, Dalles, on Wednesday morning. He is supposed to have died in a fit of nightmare.

The following named persons are delegates in the Democratic State Convention to be held at Portland, April 5th:

WASCO.—M. J. Aliphin, J. H. Blakeney, James Fulton, N. H. Gates, Charles Guldbaum, F. S. Holland, W. P. Miller, Joseph Teal and John Williams. The delegates are instructed for Col. Gates for Congress.

LANE.—J. J. Walton, Jr., Gov. Whiteaker, T. D. Hinton, A. J. Dusk, A. W. Patterson, J. E. P. Withers, Jesse Cox and E. B. Cochran. The delegates are instructed to go for ex-Governor Whiteaker for Governor.

COLUMBIA.—Wilson Hoyt and George Knox.

LINN.—S. D. Haley, N. H. Cranor, L. W. Phelps, E. B. Moore, J. W. Mack, A. Savage, W. Cyrus, Bart. Curl, Harvey Smith, B. H. Crawford, Roland South, James Williams and J. M. McConnell. The delegates are instructed for James O'Meara for State Printer.

Idaho Affairs.

OWYHEE ITEMS.—The following items are from the Avalanche:

The Owyhee volunteers, under the command of Capt. Bohannon, have returned. They gave the country about the forks of the Owyhee a scouring but failed to find any Indians. They will probably go again.

Tom Wilson, formerly of Idaho City and Walla Walla, is getting into his usual amount of trouble.

Capt. Walker says he will remove all that he can of Fort Boise to Reynolds Creek, and make that point a basis for Indian wars.

SABBATH OBSERVANCE.—The N. Y. & O. mill is regularly stopped Saturday night at 11:30. The Cosmos ditto; and we learn that the Lincoln mill intends to practice the same piety. We thought at first, this was only a temporary "ebullition of pious temper," but are informed that it is to be a permanent habit. Thus it happens that Owyhee is the first place within our knowledge to inaugurate this custom.

IDAHO QUARTZ MEN IN NEW YORK.

The World has the following:

A friend writes us from New York that there are a large number of Idaho quartz men there who are attempting to make sales, but they have so far found the business quite dull. He says those who have accumulated vast sums, have invested in Government, Oil, Railroad and other stocks and don't seem to have a very great disposition to embark in quartz. There are some of the very best leads in Idaho Territory here for sale, and it is astonishing to me that men will make investments in the stocks above referred to, and have so great a disinclination to invest in the quartz which is here for sale.

Dr. Hawthorne is here with a part of the Atlanta, in the Yuba districts,—also Jessie Benton, Grey Eagle and Willamette, some of the best in the Territory—also with a large number of leads in Flint District, Owyhee county.

One great cause of an indisposition to invest is that certain parties have been on here and sold wild cat, and made a character of representations; which has misled companies as to expenses, mode of working mines, time in which results would likely be obtained, etc.

GOOD ASSAYS.

Two assays have been made of the rock from the ledge near Pioneer City—one assay at Walla Walla, and one at Idaho City. In each case rock was taken from three portions of the ledge—on each side of the centre. The average of the assay was $701.17 per ton. The rock assayed here returned about the same amount as that sent below. A tunnel is being run to strike the ledge, which is large and well defined, and the owners are confident of holding "a good thing." Parties are going to work on the extensions.

GOOD FOR ALTURAS.

We understand that Mr. Mattingly, of Rocky Bar writes from San Francisco to the effect that certain mining interests in Alturas county have been sold in San Francisco for $100,000, and that two mills are already on the road designed for the Yuba district. Alturas is looming up.

EMIGRATION FROM THE BASIN.

The emigration for Montana continues from the Boise Basin. It is scarcely of the nature of a stampede, but rather a continuous drain of population. We are of the opinion that many of these goers will regret it. While the mining districts of Montana are undoubtedly of considerable extent and richness, yet it is equally as certain that Montana has been overdone, and that next summer it will be one of the most "overdone" places that ever an unfortunate miner wandered into.

THE PEOPLE VS. SLOCUM.

Several motions have been made and overruled in the case of the People vs. Slocum—among them a motion for a change of venue to Alturas county, on the ground that no impartial jury could be obtained in Boise county. A venire for a jury was issued on Thursday, returnable on Monday next. The cases of Vajem and Burns will probable be tried next week.

TOUCHING THE RIGHT CHORD.—The Blaisdell troupe of Bell Ringers now performing in California, shows its sagacity, in these Fenian times, by adding to their entertainment a panorama of Ireland, with an historical and descriptive lecture. It is spoken of as one of the most interesting and attractive features of this troupe, or any other now traveling in California. It is announced as the "Hibernicon."

A DISTINCTION WITHOUT A DIFFERENCE.—There is one respect in which Copperheads and a certain class of Union men differ very widely, and yet are not very widely apart: A half Copperhead is a whole one, while a half Union man is no Union man at all. The two sorts co-operate practically if not professedly. It may be that upon this fact, O'Meara bases his belief in a Copperhead majority this year.

FOR BLACKFOOT.—The Walla Walla Statesman says that a number of large pack trains are fitting out at that place for Blackfoot, to go by way of Pen d'Oreille Lake. Some of the trains number eighty to ninety animals, and all will go with full loads.

We are a strong partisan.—Herald.

Most people disagree with you on the strong part of that.

UNION STATE CONVENTION.

THE NOMINATIONS.

THE UNION PLATFORM.

CORVALLIS, March 29.—The vote for Congressman stood, on first ballot, Mallory, 63; Bowlby, 25; Henderson, 7; Baker, 28. Wood was nominated for Governor, S. E. May for Secretary of State, E. N. Cooke for Treasurer, and W. A. McPherson for State Printer. The following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, 1st, That we have an abiding confidence in the justice, intelligence and patriotism of the people of the United States; that they have the firmness and wisdom to preserve the Union their valor has sustained.

2d. As the best plan of restoring the late revolted States to the exercise of all their functions in the Union and the legislation necessary in relation to freedmen, loyal men may honestly differ. We deprecate that obstinacy or pride of opinion, whenever by whom displayed, that would give strength to the enemies of the Union through discord and division among its friends.

3d. Holding the cardinal principle of our Government to be that the right of representation goes with taxation, we desire a full recognition of all civil and political privileges to the inhabitants of the States lately in revolt, as soon as compatible with the national safety and the protection of the loyal people in those States.

4th. The name of the man or of the party that would propose to this nation to repudiate its just pecuniary obligations, should be consigned to everlasting infamy.

5th. The courage and devotion of those who have borne arms in the cause of the Union entitle them to our enduring gratitude, and we pledge ourselves not to dishonor them by destroying the principles or surrendering the results for which they fought and bled.

6th. That we will, as we ever have, support the State Governments in all their rights as the most competent administrators of their domestic concerns and the surest breastwork against anti-republican tendencies, and to preserve the General Government in its whole Constitutional vigor.

7th. That the doctrines of nullification and secession, held by the so-called Democratic party, is antagonistic to the perpetuity of the Union and destructive of the peace, order and prosperity of the American people.

8th. That we pledge ourselves to sustain the National Union, and to organize for action in carrying out and maintaining these principles, and in support of the candidates nominated by this Convention.

9th. We regard any measure which has for its object the taxing or sale of the mineral lands of the United States, that tends to retard or discourage the free use or occupancy and speedy development of the same, as detrimental to the best interests of the country, and inconsistent with sound national policy; and we respectfully call the attention of our present delegation in Congress to the subject of this resolution.

VICTORIA ITEMS.—From the Victoria papers to the 22d inst., we obtain the following items:

The Colonist disclaims all belief in the rumors concerning the union of the Colonies.

The British Columbia press, in imitation of that of California, publish greedily, everything disparaging of the Idaho and Montana mines. The Post says it has reliable information that there are only three paying gulches in Montana, and that only one of these pays anything big—the McClellan gulch.

The Government Gazette states the total amount of business transacted during the six months ending December, 1865, being the basis upon which the Trades License Tax for the current half year is levied, was $2,122,502; the amount raised on this sum by the half per cent. tax is set down at $10,614. The number of names on the roll is 522, of whom 27 are residents of Nanaimo, the rest doing business in Victoria and the adjoining port of Esquimalt. The amount of business on which the tax is calculated, is $233,414 less than that of the preceding six months, the tax showing a corresponding decrease of $1,158.

The Cariboo Sentinel is to be revived on Williams' Creek, under the management of Messrs. Allan & Lambert.

The Russian trading steamer Alexander II went to sea on the 22d inst. Among the Island products which she took were ten tons of oats, ten tons assorted vegetables (carrots, potatoes, turnips and cabbages) 100 M. shingles, a large quantity of bricks, and 500 tons of coal.

The Victorians are counting confidently on an immigration of three thousand, and, in case of good news from Big Bend before June, not less than ten thousand.

The Chronicle publishes the following Big Bend news:

Mr. E. Read, clothier of Government street, has received a letter from a friend, who is at work on the steamer at Shuswap, dated Feb. 25th, in which it is stated by the writer that he has conversed with a miner from Big Bend, who represented the diggings as the richest ever struck in British Columbia. Flour on French Creek was very scarce and worth $1 per pound; small quantities had gone across the divide in dog-sleds. The writer advises people to bring plenty of money, as provisions will be higher in the spring. At the place where the boat is being built, the snow was from four to six feet deep and the lake frozen over. Flour was selling at 30 cents per pound and other articles in proportion. The town of Seymour will be removed, it is thought, to the opposite side of Shuswap Lake, whence it is intended to construct a wagon road to Big Bend. The new buildings already erected at Seymour, will, in consequence, prove a bad speculation for the owners.

CIRCUIT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES—DEADY JUSTICE. January term, 1866.—Cullen C. Chapman vs. School District No. 1, and the city of Portland—Suit in equity to quiet title to real property. The Court rendered a final decree in this case yesterday, accompanied by a written opinion of great length. We publish the following synopsis:

The complainant seeks to quiet his title to the undivided one-fourth of lot 3 in block 29 in this city, sometimes called the School House lot. The complainant claims by deed from Benj. Stark, who derives his title from the United States, by virtue of a settlement, commencing September 1, 1849, under the Donation Act. The defendants above mentioned answered separately, and claimed title to the lot in trust; the former, for the use of public schools in Portland, and the latter for public use generally, by virtue of a bond for a deed to the trustees of the subscribers to the school and meeting house in Portland, executed by Daniel H. Lownsdale for himself and [illegible] Coffin, on Nov. 20, 1849, and a covenant from Stark to Lownsdale in an agreement on March 1, 1850, to ratify and confirm the same. Each of the defendants also claimed that Stark had dedicated the lot to it, for public uses, by acts and words in parol.

The Court found that Stark became the owner of the land by a settlement under the Donation Act, commencing [illegible] 1, 1849, and ending four years thereafter, and that on September 13, 1864, he conveyed an undivided fourth part of the lot to the complainant, who took such conveyance with notice of all the facts properly [illegible] to Stark, his grantor.

That the corporation of Portland had never been in the [illegible] or occupation of the lot, and that the school district had never been in the possession, use or [illegible] of the lot, except for the term of one year, from November 1, 1862, as tenants, under a written lease, [illegible] rent of $150; and that both such corporations, since the commencement of this suit, had [illegible] the lot as the property of Stark, and collected from him the taxes thereon.

That at [illegible] times prior to 1857, private schools had been taught there, religious and public meetings held there, with the express or implied assent of the trustees of the [illegible] subscribers to the school and meeting house. That the [illegible] subscribers to the school and meeting house were [illegible] of private individuals, in and about the [illegible] of Portland, who in May, 1849, agreed to [illegible] build a school and meeting house, to [illegible] as a private enterprise, by such trustees as [illegible] and that on June 5th, 1849, they chose [illegible] and built the building on this lot, and took [illegible] Lownsdale and Coffin, upon the condition [illegible] trustees should be chosen and incorporated [illegible] Legislature to manage this school as therein [illegible] of the restrictions of any school law [illegible]

[illegible] of the bond were never complied [illegible] thereby contemplated never took effect. [illegible] district No. 1 cannot take this trust, for [illegible] in law to manage the same, and because [illegible] prohibits it.

[illegible] of Portland is not authorized to [illegible] lands for the purposes of education or religion, in trust or otherwise, and therefore cannot [illegible] bond, as the trust therein proposed is for [illegible] and no other.

[illegible] is not bound or affected by any agreements [illegible] and Coffin, when they were in the occupancy without title or interest therein, before the donation act, and this covenant with Lownsdale, [illegible] 1850, does not make him personally [illegible] persons, and he is not liable thereon to [illegible] grantees or vendees, because there is no [illegible] Stark having derived his title from the [illegible] and not from Lownsdale.

[illegible] never made any dedication of this lot to the [illegible] to any public use, although in casual conversation he [illegible] a willingness or purpose to [illegible] to the city if it would reimburse him the expense [illegible] on account of the property. That to sustain [illegible], the proof should be clear and [illegible] and a mere purpose or intention to dedicate is [illegible]. That evidence, which would be [illegible] of [illegible] of streets and public squares, [illegible] to show a dedication of a [illegible] to some particular public use, in which Stark [illegible] interest and in which the public had [illegible] right or claim. Decree for the complainant.

[illegible] Dolph, for City of Portland and [illegible]

[illegible].—Late on the night of the demo- [illegible] a man appeared at a well [illegible] near Stark street, inquiring [illegible] a Serpent." We took him for a copper- [illegible] the strange [illegible] have [illegible] prompted by curiosity to learn [illegible] of his singular action. Looking [illegible] of the London Lancet yesterday [illegible] explained by the following paragraph: [illegible], an amusing and scientific toy, are [illegible], and it is right that their [illegible] should be made generally known, [illegible] whether their employment is [illegible] safety, or whether the products of [illegible] are detrimental to health. These toys [illegible] of mercury, a compound, as the [illegible] of sulphur, cyanogen, and mercury, the [illegible] as are volatilized by heat, each [illegible], producing a number of more [illegible] and even poisonous products. The sulphur [illegible] part, converted into sulphurous [illegible] of an [illegible] irritating [illegible]. The cyanogen, a highly poisonous [illegible] is partly volatilized and [illegible], and is [illegible], evolving carbonic acid, nitrogen, [illegible] with a portion of the sulphur, [illegible] the vapor of bisulphide of [illegible] a portion of it is converted into the organic [illegible], and which constitutes, in fact, [illegible] of the so-called serpents; [illegible] the mercury is an [illegible] in the state of [illegible] being the injurious and poisonous nature [illegible]. It is very [illegible] that persons with [illegible] from any [illegible] of these, or [illegible] most careful not to inhale the products [illegible] of "Pharaoh's serpents," and in all cases [illegible] be taken that the room in which these [illegible] be freely ventilated. So satisfied are the [illegible] of their deleterious properties, that [illegible] has forbidden their sale except by persons [illegible] authorized to sell poisons."

[illegible] NAPKINS.—The curiosity of one of our [illegible] was excited yesterday by a string of numbered [illegible] in an auction store, and he naturally [illegible] what they were for. On being told they [illegible], he said he should have [illegible] for the numbers, 1, 2, 3, 4, etc., that [illegible]. Napkins have their etiquette. An [illegible] they are to be laid open on the knees, and [illegible] to the waistcoat or button hole. At the [illegible] at home, you may fold your napkin [illegible] its ring to serve for the next meal, and [illegible] several in the family the numbered rings [illegible] one person from getting the napkin of another. [illegible] of the family at dinner you must leave [illegible] not fold up, or exactly as you have finished [illegible] the table. To fold it would look as if you considered [illegible] one of the family, or at least on a staying visit.

"VARIETY."—If the "spice of life" consists in variety, [illegible] meat market at Astoria where any amount of that [illegible] may be obtained, to give relish, and gratify the taste. The advertisement in the Gazette, states that in [illegible] the meat market "can at all times be found a [illegible] assortment of A No. 1 [illegible] for grain, ladies, youths and children. Dry goods, [illegible] paints, brushes, [illegible] cedar pails and tubs, corn [illegible] nails, patent medicines, [illegible] books and [illegible]"

[illegible]—[illegible] at the Oregon Iron Works in this city are now kept busy crushing rock [illegible] quartz [illegible] for the purpose of [illegible]. That from Vancouver we [illegible] turn out as well as was [illegible] by [illegible] day the batteries were busy crushing [illegible] river, region. Mining [illegible] ample opportunities afforded them for [illegible] leads by this process, and persons who [illegible] to see quartz operations can do so by [illegible] the Iron Works a visit.

[illegible]—The sloop Aquilas, under command [illegible] which left about the 1st ult., for Aquina [illegible] which some fears of a wreck had been felt, [illegible] day arrived safe at Crescent City, California, on the 18th, after a most boisterous voyage of three weeks in very severe weather. We are without further [illegible] than that her cargo was being discharged, which leaves the supposition that the vessel was in a [illegible] condition. It has been rather a hard commencement [illegible] the new sloop, but we are glad to learn of the safety of her crew.

A SHOWER.—A smart "shower" of rain set in yesterday morning, and at last accounts had but slightly moderated. It reminded an old Oregonian of an event that [illegible] in 1852, while he was keeping a hotel in this [illegible]. One day in December a stranger appeared at the [illegible] left his horse under a shed to wait until the [illegible] was over. Coming meal-time, the horse was [illegible] in the stable, and the stranger waited until April [illegible] shower was over.

A PEG WRONG.—There must have been a peg wrong in the grade of Washington street, when it was improved in the vicinity of Sixth street. About all the water that [illegible] down the gutters, west of Sixth street, gets no [illegible] towards the river on Washington, but branches [illegible] and south, after completely flooding the crossings, [illegible] supreme disgust of all residents and pedestrians [illegible]

[illegible] STEAMER AT COLVILLE.—The Victoria Chronicle learns by a private letter from Fort Sheppard that [illegible] new steamer, larger than the Forty-Nine, is to be immediately built at Colville. The Columbia was [illegible] open to navigation for some distance above Fort [illegible] on March first.

HABEAS CORPUS.—M. F. Gallagher, accused of killing [illegible], was brought before Judge Shattuck yesterday on a writ of habeas corpus, for the purpose of hearing [illegible] offered by his counsel to admit him to bail for [illegible] at the approaching term of the Circuit Court. [illegible] was continued until Monday next.

THE INDEPENDENT LINE.—We learn that the propeller [illegible] has been chartered to run on the Willamette [illegible] between Portland and Oregon City, in connection with the Echo, above the falls, until Capt. Ankeny can build a new steamer for this portion of the Independent line.

THE MIST.—This fine sloop, of Capt. Hoxie, last season a favorite with with visitors to the sea coast, is now in this city, and will to-day be hauled out at the ship yard of Mr. Bruce, where she is to be enlarged and receive [illegible] and a propeller.

The City Treasurer's office will be open to-day at 10 o'clock A. M., for the transaction of business. The office has been closed for a few days past in consequence of the death of Mr. C. N. Hamilton.

THE RIVER.—Under the pressure of the late rains the river is rapidly rising.

[illegible] will be repeated, with all the effects, at Willamette Hall to-night.

Montana Matters.

ABOUT THE REVENUE SEIZURES.

The Helena, Montana, correspondence of the World, dated Feb. 10th, contains the following:

The excise officers are in the height of their glory just now. Over half a million dollars worth of property consisting of distilled spirits, tobacco, cigars and coal-oil, have been seized by the Collector of Internal Revenue, who refuses to release upon bonds however good. A call upon the Deputy Collector elicited little satisfaction, and rather a dangerous excitement is evidently on the tapis. Should the Collector upon his arrival here, fail to exhibit instructions from the Revenue Department at Washington satisfactory to the merchants and traders, serious resistance to his confiscation scheme will doubtless follow.

The facts of the case as near as I have been able to gather them are these. The Collector assumes to have received instructions from Washington advising him to seize all goods liable to pay duty to the United States upon which the brand of the Inspector of Internal Revenue is not visible. The consequence is that all alcoholic fluids have been seized, including foreign as well as domestic manufacture. Imported liquors, however, found in original packages bearing the Inspector's mark have been released in some instances. Coal oil in one instance stamped by the City Inspector of St. Louis, was released. Now the fact is that both the above articles have paid the duty at the distillery or well, and both after falling into the hands of merchants have been repacked for the convenience of transportation in the case of distilled spirits perhaps half a dozen times. The Collector once in possession, claims the right to proceed against them without other evidence to convict them than the fact of the absence of the Inspector's mark or stencil brand. Upon a close examination of the Internal Revenue Law, nothing appears to warrant the present seizure of liquor or coal oil. The case may be somewhat different with tobacco and cigars,—but from present appearances the whole transaction looks like a huge speculation of the Collectors, without warrant of law or precedent.

THE SUN RIVER EXCITEMENT.

has looked, for the past few days, like a large sized steamboat. Hundreds have returned through snow from two to four feet deep, some with frozen feet, hands, etc., while five bodies have been found already who have perished with the cold. But all the suffering—the inclement weather does not stop the constant stream of prospectors drifting in that direction. Should there be any locality in that portion of the Territory indicating a good deposit it will hardly escape the close scrutiny to which the whole country will be subject. In the general stampede Idaho is largely represented, as she is now becoming in every movement attempted in the community.

DON'T NEGLECT A COLD.—They are the primary cause of nearly all diseases. One table spoonful of the Genuine Hall's Pulmonary Balsam taken at bed time will cure any cold, no matter where located.

Dr. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters.—The operation of this palatable remedy upon the stomach, liver and excretory organs is singularly soothing and conservative. It regulates, recruits and purifies them. Dyspepsia in all its forms yields to its control and invigorating properties, and it is recommended to mothers, enfeebled by the cares and duties of maternity, as the safest and best tonic they can probably use. In all the crisis of female life it will be found eminently useful, and elderly persons will derive much more benefit from it than from ordinary stimulants. Persons of sedentary habits troubled with weakness, lassitude, palpitation of the heart, lack of appetite, distress after eating, torpid liver, constipation, &c., deserve to suffer if they will not try the celebrated

PLANTATION BITTERS,

Which are now recommended by the highest medical authorities, and warranted to produce an immediate beneficial effect. They are exceedingly agreeable, perfectly pure, and must supercede all other tonics where a healthy, gentle stimulant is required.

They purify, strengthen and invigorate.
They create a healthy appetite.
They are an antidote to change of water and diet.
They overcome effects of dissipation and late hours.
They strengthen the system and enliven the mind.
They prevent miasmatic and intermittent fevers.
They purify the breath and acidity of the stomach.
They cure Dyspepsia and Constipation.
They cure Diarrhea and Cholera Morbus.
They cure Liver Complaint and Nervous Headache.
They make the weak strong, the languid brilliant, and are exhausted nature's great restorer. They are composed of the celebrated Calisaya bark, wintergreen, sassafras, roots and herbs, all preserved in perfectly pure St. Croix rum. For particulars, see circulars and testimonials around each bottle.

Beware of impostors. Examine every bottle. See that it has our private U. S. Stamp unmutilated over the cork, with plantation scene, and our signature on a fine steel plate side label. See that our bottle is not refilled with spurious and deleterious stuff. Any person pretending to sell Plantation Bitters by the gallon or in Bulk, is an impostor. Any person imitating this bottle, or selling any other material therein, whether called Plantation Bitters or not, is a criminal under the U. S. Law, and will be so prosecuted by us. We already have our eye on several parties re-filling our bottles, &c., who will succeed in getting themselves into close quarters. The demand for Drake's Plantation Bitters from ladies, clergymen, merchants, &c., is incredible. The simple trial of a bottle is the evidence we present of their worth and superiority. They are sold by all respectable druggists, grocers, physicians, hotels, saloons, steamboats and country stores.

The "Ager."

BY A POET

Once upon an evening bleary
While I sat me dreamy, dreary,
In the sunshine thinking over
Things that passed in days of yore
While I nodded nearly sleeping
Gently came a something creeping
Up my back like water seeping
Seeping upward from the floor
"'Tis a cooling breeze," I muttered,
"From the regions 'neath the floor—
Only this and nothing more."

Ah, distinctly I remember,
It was in that wet September
When the earth and every member
Of creation that it bore
Had for weeks and weeks been soaking
In the meanest most provoking
Foggy rains that without joking,
We had ever seen before,
So I knew it must be very
Cold and damp beneath the floor—
Very cold beneath the floor

So I sat me nearly napping,
In the sunshine, stretching, gaping
And a feeling quite delightful
With the breeze from 'neath the floor;
Till I found me growing colder
And the stretching waxing bolder,
And myself feeling older—
Older than I'd felt before;
Feeling that my joints were stiffer
Than they were in days of yore—
Stiffer than they'd been before

All along my back the creeping
Soon gave place to rushing, leaping,
As if countless frozen demons
Had concluded to explore
All the cavities—the varmints—
'Twixt me and my nether garments
Up into my hair, and downward
Through my boots into the floor;
Then I felt myself a shaking
Gently shaking more and more—
Every moment more and more

'Twas the Ager, and it shook me
Into heavy clothes, and took me
Shaking to the kitchen—every
Place where there was warmth in store;
Shaking till the "chine" rattled,
Shaking till my molars rattled,
Shaking, and with all my warming,
Feeling colder than before;
Shaking till it had exhausted
All its powers to shake me more—
Till it could not shake me more

Then it rested till the morrow,
When it came with all the horror
That it had the face to borrow,
Shaking, shaking as before;
And from that day in September—
Day which I shall long remember—
It has made diurnal visits,
Shaking, shaking, oh, so sore!
Shaking off my boots, and shaking
Me to bed, if nothing more—
Fully this, if nothing more—

And to-day the swallows flitting
Round my cottage see me sitting
Moodily within the sunshine,
Just inside my silent door,
Waiting for the Ager, seeming
Like a man forever dreaming,
And the sunlight on me streaming
Sheds no shadow on the floor;
For I am too thin and sallow
To make shadows on the floor—
Nary [illegible] shadow more!

Mr. Lincoln as a Lawyer.

Mr. Lincoln, in early life, chose the profession of the law, and the reason he assigned was this "It was the grandest science of man"; it was the best profession to develop the logical faculty, and the highest platform on which man could exhibit his powers in a well trained manhood."

He had some of the best attributes of a large, strong, healthy lawyer. He had great capacity of reason, and with it logic; he loved and grasped principles as well as details. He had concentration, continuity and endurance. He had conscience and heart; the powers of analysis—he was cool, calm, cautious, practical, impassioned, slow, just, and honest. He was a safe and conscientious counselor. It is alleged that he never did and never would, take a fee on the wrong side. This, however, the speaker hesitated to authenticate, but affirmed that he was an honest lawyer, carried his personal and individual honor to the bar, was all liberality, courtesy, and honor there. He dealt liberally with men as to the manner in which he treated his clients in their cases. He was always just and conscientious. Some points of his legal character are illustrated by the following examples:

1. A gentleman would come into his office and state his case, and if it was a wrong, malicious or illegal one, Mr. Lincoln would say, "My friend, you are in the wrong; you have no justice and no equity with you. I would advise you to drop the matter, and fling all the [illegible] of it to the winds."

2. If a gentleman came into his office and stated his case, and if he had the right side, Mr. L. told him so. He then again patiently listened to what would be [illegible], and after forming his final opinion of the merits of the case, he would say, "My friend, you are in the right, but I don't think your evidence sufficiently strong, (always allowing a little for exaggerations, when so made to drive conviction home to the minds of the jury.) I advise you to compromise, and if you can't get this, and can't find other and further proofs, I advise you to drop the case and fling all thought of it to the winds."

3. If a man [illegible] into his office and made a statement of his case, and, after patiently listening to the whole story and all the points, including evidences, and if he formed the opinion that his client was right, he said: "My friend, you are in the right; I can so demonstrate it to the minds of the jury—send home the conviction to the mind of the court of its legality and justice. I have no reasonable doubt of this; but I advise you, as a good man, to go to your neighbor and say to him what you have said to me, and ask him kindly and firmly to do right and justly, and if he will not do it then I'll make him;" and in this case there was no failure in the end.

Mr. Lincoln was an extremely strong man when in the right—a most powerful man. His sincerity was all over his face, integrity and honor were in it. On the weak side of a case he was equally weak, a child, helpless, and pitiable. His fees were small—he only charged what he in conscience thought his [illegible] were worth. He never sued a client but once, to the knowledge of the lecturer, and that was the Central railroad; and in that case he sued rather for the insult than for the fee. It is said that Mr. Lincoln was an excellent nisi prius lawyer, i. e., a good Circuit Court lawyer. Truly he was, he had scarcely an element of a nisi prius lawyer, as the world understands the term. The qualities of a good nisi prius lawyer are quickness, sharpness, versatility of mind—that can [illegible] and leap here and there as occasions and contingencies demand, and equally quick to form an accurate judgment. Technically quick, analytic, [illegible], cunning, minds would, heartless, conscienceless men, succeed in the Circuit Court, in bad and good cases alike. The lecturer had seen Mr. Lincoln sent out of court many times, because, figuratively speaking, an "i" was not dotted, or a "t" crossed.

Mr. Lincoln was a great lawyer in the Federal Courts, in the Supreme Court of the State of Illinois, and in the Circuit Courts of the States where he had time to prepare his cases. In the Federal Courts and Supreme Courts of this State, he took time, and thoroughly prepared his cases. He was then a "number one" lawyer. In the Circuit Courts, however, the lecturer considered him a third-rate power. In a conversation with Mr Lincoln, he (the lecturer) repeated to him what a celebrated Judge once said was a lawyer's duty to his client, namely. That his head, conscience, heart and soul belonged to his client; all his intelligence, tact and skill were his. To which Mr Lincoln replied: "No client ever had money enough to bribe my conscience, or to stop its utterance against wrong and oppression. My conscience is my Creator's, not mine. I shall never sink the rights of mankind to malice, wrong or avarice of another's wishes, though those wishes come to me in the relation of client and attorney." A noble sentiment

In the same conversation, in which the lecturer was reproving him for having lost a good case, as he supposed, from defective practice, he made the following remark about general reading

"I cannot read generally. I never read text books, for I have no particular motive to drive me to it. As I am constituted, I don't love to read, and as I do not, I feel no interest in what is read—nor even can I remember such reading. When I have a particular case in hand, I have that motive, and desire to ferret out the questions to the bottom, love to dig them up by the roots and hold them up and dry them before the fires of the mind. I know that general reading broadens the mind—makes it universal, but it never makes a precise, deep, clear mind. The study of particular cases has that tendency, as I understand it. General reading has its advantages and disadvantages, and the same may be said of special case readings."

Mr Lincoln was indulgent to all the members of the bar, especially the young ones, whom he always assisted. He was deferential to the Court at all times. He respected the feelings of witnesses, and was never wont to browbeat or bully them, no matter on which side they testified. He was respectful to sheriffs, deputies, and all under officers of the Court. His pleadings were plain, short, clear, and to the point at issue.

Mr. Lincoln was an unsuspecting man, and supposed all men to be like himself. But let a witness verge toward perjury, and woe be to him. If Mr Lincoln entertained the notion that the man was swearing to a willful falsehood he chastised him with whips of scorpions. To flee from Mr Lincoln and conscience were impossible. In such a situation he (the lecturer) had seen the witness on the stand turn pale and tremble—great drops of sweat bestudding his face—an unmistaken illustration of poor fallen human nature.—Herald & Lecturer.

The Cholera

At a meeting of the Commissioners of Health of New York City Monday afternoon, Dr Sayer stated that the last information from Guadaloupe was to the effect that cholera was introduced there by a trunk, containing the clothing of two persons who had died from the disease while on the passage from Marseilles, where the cholera was prevailing, and that the woman who washed the clothes, with all her family died almost immediately.

A letter was also read from Dr Chas A. Lee, of the Medical Department of the Buffalo University which suggests a new theory in regard to this frightful disease, and which while it leaves much still unexplained, yet bears strong antecedent marks of probability. His theory is briefly this

The disease is not contagious. On the other hand facts abundantly prove that it is portable and always follows the great routes of travel. We have satisfactory evidence that the disease is communicated through the evacuations of those infected with it and in this way only. Persons thus infected may travel from place to place without development of the disease in themselves, and yet leave behind in privies and water closets the germs of the deadly epidemic. It is this fact, so generally overlooked which explains away much of the mystery which attaches to this fearful malady. In this way alone can we account for the many anomalies in the progress of the disease which, though often deviating from the ordinary course of travel, yet in no case travels faster than ships, rail road cars and men travel.

Furthermore, although the cholera poison may not be present in the stools just discharged, it may be generated in them at a later period under peculiar circumstances, such as the contact with putrid animal and vegetable matter, or an impure atmosphere. And the cholera, thus generated at first in the low crowded, and filthy places of a city, soon spreads to higher grounds, and to places which were at first exempt.

These views, the Doctor thinks, are strongly confirmed by the experiences on the Atalanta. None of the cabin passengers or crew used the water closets used by the steerage passengers and none of them were attacked by the disease. This explains, too, the fact that the disease rages with greater violence on the water.

From these considerations he draws these practical lessons.

1. Quarantine regulations cannot be too strict nor too rigidly enforced.

2. The most thorough sanitary measures must be enforced and carried out in all places offered to the invasion of the disease, especially in large cities, where every effort should be used to have all houses, streets, alleys, privies, drains, cess pools, &c., thoroughly cleansed and disinfected.

3. All intercourse with places infected with the disease must be absolutely prohibited, or at any rate guarded with the greatest care and precaution.

4. Should the disease unfortunately be introduced into a place, cholera stools should not be emptied into necessaries and water closets in common use.

5. The police should be instructed to pour into every privy and water closet suitable disinfectants or furnish the same for this purpose.

In a postscript he adds "the only real security against this disease is in carrying out the most thorough sanitary reform in personal, domestic and civic cleanliness and purification, and it is a work which requires instant attention. Not a day nor an hour is to be lost.

Dr. Sayer stated that these views had been communicated to a number of the first medical gentlemen of the city, who regarded them of such importance as to demand their general circulation.

It is high time that our own city authorities were taking hold of this matter in earnest. A few weeks hence and work will not avail. It is far more easy to throw up our defenses, and await the enemy behind them, than to permit his entrance and then attempt his removal. One determined, persistent, intelligent effort may save us, at least greatly mitigate the severity of the terrible scourge. "But not a day or an hour is to be lost."

THE NEW PARTY SCHEME.—It has been hinted that a movement has been going on for weeks past to make a demonstration here, looking to the establishment of what in sugar-coated phrase is called a National party, the fact that it was to include Copperheads, Southern rebels, and a goodly proportion of neutrals being supposed to render it national. One other feature made the term appropriate; the plot extended to all parts of the country, but with the exception of the 8th of January meeting in St. Louis, little concerning the matter has come before the people. It has been an intrigue carried on in the dark, and arranged with all the skill which those who would work in such a cause were masters of. Everything was ready to hold the meeting here, which by prompt response from all parts of the land, was to inaugurate a party which should be able to obtain control of Congress, and which might feel sure of the President. An apparent division of the Union men upon the suffrage bill was deemed a propitious hour to act, but the result was such as to bring dismay upon these workers. For the moment their cause seemed utterly hopeless, and it has been no relief to find that the Senate will in all probability acquiesce in the decision of the House by more than a two-thirds majority.

Still, the plan has by no means been abandoned, and the unexpected defeat has only caused greater activity to avert utter destruction, and in the end to retrieve the ground they have lost. That they are thus laboring is a significant fact, showing that much support is looked for outside of Congress. Whether this is obtained or not depends only upon the power which these intriguers can secure, and it must be remembered that they combine the entire South and all the unsatisfied elements of the North. But all this will go for nothing, as it has done since the war began, provided the people who elected the Union men of this Congress will stand by them. Any wavering will be an advantage yielded to the common enemy—the old enemy of the North, for it is beyond question that this move for a new party is the old alliance between the South and its willing Northern tools. The wonder and the shame is that any can now be found at the North to bow their necks so low. Into such the heroic spirit and the manliness which the war aroused has never entered.—Cin. Cincinnati Gazette.

IRON-CLAD NAVIES.—Donald McKay, the well known shipbuilder, has returned from an inspection of the navy yards of England and France, and favors the Boston Commercial Bulletin with the results of his observations. Recognizing the efficiency of many of the vessels now building in Europe, he at the same time expresses satisfaction that our Government have equipped "a fleet more powerful than all the iron-clad navies of the world," and advises that there should be no cessation of the work. Mr. McKay is especially pleased with the Dunderberg, building by Wm H Webb, of New York, of which he says

"I have personally inspected all the iron-clads of England and France, but I have not seen one of them which, in originality of design, power and completeness of detail, begins to compare with her. She combines the impregnability of the turret system with the advantages of the broadside and ends. In short, she can bring guns to bear from every point of the compass, without changing her position. From the appearance of her model it is evident to me that she must be an excellent sea boat of superior speed, and notwithstanding her great size easily managed. It is said she will cost over $2,000,000, but this is not high, when compared with the sums lavished upon the large iron clads of the old world which are far inferior to her as a vessel of war. I consider her a match for a fleet of such vessels as some of the best produced in France."

The writer speaks of "one fearful deficiency," viz. the inadequate supply of dry docks, supposing there should be a hard naval engagement, damaging many vessels. England and France on the other hand, while adding to the strength and number of their ships keep pace with the increase of their dry docks and basins. The French dry docks contain space sufficient for fifty of the largest class ships at one time, and England is fast reaching an equal capacity.

A correspondent in New Orleans says "The fine bronze statute of Clay, standing in the centre of Canal street, is a beautiful memorial of that great Southron. It was hardly contemplated in the beginning I suppose, that this enduring testimonial should be finished at the hands of a Massachusetts lawyer, yet Gen Butler had deeply inscribed on the bare pedestal which he found one of those bayonet-like anathemas which Clay sometimes hurled into the carcass of slavery. So on the base of the equestrian statute of Jackson, near the Cathedral, by the same order, was cut the memorable assertion 'The Federal Union, it must and shall be preserved.'"

FAIR REPLY.—Just before he died, Daniel Webster called to his bosom friend, George T Curtis, and said: "The stability of the Union will hereafter depend upon the Democracy."—Mountain Democrat.

We expect that was so—but it occurred after Daniel had lost his senses. When that condition arrives, some men talk a great deal of nonsense. The editor of the Mountain Democrat seems on the point of dissolution.—Gold Hill News.

[illegible] the object and utility of those organizations of which you and I are members. We are represented to-day by our brothers the Vancouver Hibernian on one side and by our Fenian Brotherhood on the other, whilst the Portland Hibernian Society forms the centre—three holding [illegible] one stem—a subject admirably typified in the green shamrock of our native land. [illegible] for which men can [illegible] more laudable [illegible] that which animates us to-day. [illegible] highest, holiest aims of humanity—[illegible] ask. Is the Fenian Brotherhood a [illegible] association? I tell them yes [illegible]. For where can there be more charity extended than to help a down trodden people, women and children? And where can you find them? Look you [illegible] Ireland—and the sole object of the Fenian organization is the regeneration of that nation and people, and with that help they will succeed. So much for the Fenian Brotherhood.

Now for the object of the Hibernian Benevolent Societies. The Hibernians are not banded together for any personal aggrandizement. They are simply holding together by the chain of friendship and love to their fellow man, which should unite all men as brothers. The sole aim of the Society is expressed on our banner when we declare our object [illegible] visit the sick and bury the dead, and we can look back during the past few years and cast [illegible] ourselves with the thought that we have so far as lay in our power poured the healing of consolation into more than one desolate heart.

Now this object alone is enough for every Irish heart to see the necessity of his becoming a member of either of these organizations. The Hibernians, then, are simply benevolent associations of men who agree among themselves cheerfully to visit each other in the hours of sickness, and to inter deceased members with decency and respect. And if one society of men stand higher than another before the Throne of Mercy it is that one which has for its consummation these objects. Is it not consoling when stricken down in a bed of sickness to know that there are men that are bound to you by the bond of fraternal love, and who will minister to your wants whilst sickness afflicts you? And is it not a comfort to know when the hour of death approaches that you will be carried to your last resting place in the arms of those men whom you once called brothers, and as the last sod of clay is smoothed down on your grave, many an Irish heart will throb with emotions of sorrow at your early death. And then how consoling the thought to the widow and the orphan, to know that there are strong arms and willing hearts among their countrymen whose duty it is to guide by their advice and their assistance the poor and helpless in the hour of need.

If we had no such societies organized as those we see to-day around us, we would have no such celebrations of St Patrick's Day. And what, I ask, would keep alive in our breasts the fire of patriotism, which should burn brightly in every Irish heart, if we did not gather together at least once a year to renew our fervor in the faith of Ireland's regeneration.

We have met as men should meet, [illegible] concord and peace; and as those who are resolved to see their country released from [illegible], Old Ireland—great, glorious and free.

The Island from which we are sprung is small upon the face of the globe, yet its history recited through many centuries, and is more or less an object of interest to most other nations of the world.

This day may find her children congregated in societies in every civilized country. This day the Shamrock is sought for under polar snows and amidst the sands of the equator. This day from pole to pole, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, on either side, millions of voices are raised, the shouts and songs of Irishmen [illegible] through the vaulted sky, and are wafted together to their own verdant glittering Emerald Isle. They exhibit [illegible] decorated in the courts of the Old World, [illegible] in the assemblies of the New; they bear proudly the [illegible] freedom and pour out their [illegible] at the tomb of Washington.

It would be painful for us to go back through the course of ages and follow, in the pages of history, the traces of the blood and tears of unfortunate Ireland. Who does not know of the long series of violence, of [illegible], of spoliation and plunder of every sort, of perfidy, of tyranny and sanguinary oppression? These atrocities relate to this day engraven in our hearts, and will ever stand on the page of history as black monuments of infamy against tyrannical England. Let it stand reflect on them. In the time in which we live it is no longer possible for one nation to retain another in servitude and suffering without raising against her the indignation of the world. It is above all, not longer possible to enjoy at the same time the benefits of oppression and the advantage of a reputation for liberality. The complaints of a people are heard to-day from one end of the earth to the other. The loftiest mountains nor the noise of two oceans can prevent the cry of the anguish of nationalities from reaching those who sympathize with their sufferings.

Great Britain may in vain throw between Ireland and us her majestic shadow, and trouble the air with her powerful voice, but the moans of Ireland shall be heard. Though England has labored for nearly seven centuries to destroy the nationality of Ireland, yet Ireland is still a nation. She has not lost her national legislation and her political independence, but she still has her national literature, her national poetry, her national eloquence, her national spirit, her national patriotism. She still lives, breathes, moves and acts as a nation. England may throw down but she cannot destroy her nationality. Brute force may subdue the body, but it cannot trammel the souls of Irishmen. If the spirit of Ireland could be broken, seven centuries of the most galling oppression would have broken it, but I thank God that spirit is still as buoyant, as elastic, as independent as ever. It hates oppression as much as ever it did. It kisses not the rod that scourges it. It cannot be won by bribery, nor conquered by physical force. Ireland is still the emerald of the ocean. The very name still trills through every true soul and stirs the deep fountain of sympathies. Many are the mournful recollections awakened simply by the mention of the name of the much wronged country.

Who is there that has but one spark of generosity in his bosom that has not felt his spirit burn within him at the sad rehearsal of Ireland's wrongs? Is there one man on the face of the earth that can hear that story unmoved? Is there one who has not felt himself to a more or less extent moved in the tender feelings embodied in the following touching lines of Ireland's sweetest poet

The stranger shall hear thy lament on his plains,
The sighs of thy harp shall be heard o'er the deep
Till thy tyrants themselves as they rivet thy chains,
Shall pause o'er the songs of their captives and weep.

Where is the wreath her Shamrock does not adorn? Her harp has ever kindled the soul of the warrior and soothed the sorrows of the broken hearted. It has sounded every strain that can move the heart to greatness and love.

Whatever views may stain Ireland her people are free from voluntary servitude. England, who admits in Italy the right of nationalities, and the authority of universal suffrage, who applauds the insurrection of Sicily and subscribed for Garibaldi, has no right to refuse the claims of Ireland. In no case would remonstrance be more justified than in our country, so cruelly treated, and which in spite of her long day of sorrow possesses still a powerful vitality. It may be that the political situation to-day may not be favorable to the hopes of Ireland but the time will come—Ireland thinks so. Ireland expects so.

Ireland viewed commercially possesses the best advantages of any European country. She is the first country touched or sighted by vessels coming from America. More spacious harbors are found, safer and more convenient than those of England, for neither London nor Liverpool can compete with Irish ports. [illegible] had been as just toward Ireland as nature has been prodigal, what ships from all parts of the world, what active commerce, would fill with life her numerous harbors. What splendid sights would the bays of Dublin, Bantry, Galway, Waterford, Belfast, Cork—the natural points of communication with Australia—present. What traffic in the canals, and on so many lovely rivers. What activity, what industry what life would appear in all those villages silent and in ruins to-day. What riches would be extracted from the soil. Manufactures, raised by national capital, would attest the genius and the energy of that industrious race. Prosperous in every land to which the blast of misfortune carries them, prosper us everywhere, in fact except in their own unhappy country. Which of all different branches of commerce and manufacture that contributes to England's prosperity would not Ireland possess. Many could be named in which the Irish, by their peculiar faculties, by their natural tastes and imaginations, and by their artistic skill, would surely excel. How different, in fine would be that Ireland from the one now known to us only for its misfortunes. Were Ireland free, what animation would then reign everywhere, what joy would then resound on the sea shores where tears only are shed to-day. From mountains where people now perish with hunger. If Ireland was free what gladsome scenes would reflect in the bosom of the lovely lakes of independent and prosperous Ireland.

Perhaps this may be called indulging in poetical fancy, but let it be remembered that the bright dawn of prosperity was seen during the short time of Irish independence. From 1782 to 1799, when Ireland possessed only the mere shadow of a national parliament. But leaving aside the dreams of the past or the ambitious views of the future, let us take advantage of the present time and with hearts and hands work quietly but surely for our country's freedom and honor.

To tell of the legalized plunder of the persecution of centuries by which it was thought to change the religion of the nation and destroy the right of conscience would be but to awaken feelings in us that have been [illegible]. We may differ very much in our political creeds, yet we live in harmony and affection, each respecting the rights of his friend and claims for himself what he concedes to his brother. We can weep over the crimes of those who have ruined our country. If we may learn wisdom from the exhibition of their havoc and better appreciate the blessings of which we are now the partakers. It will be permitted to us this day to enjoy the melancholy gratification of contemplating the former greatness of our country, and going back in spirit and affection to the land of our fathers to the Island of Shamrock, the [illegible] gem of the ocean.

Though glory be gone and though hope fade away,
Yet thy name, loved Erin, shall live in our songs,
And even in the hour when the heart is most gay,
Shall not lose the remembrance of thee and thy wrongs.
